Nokia Networks LTA Welcomes Customers at Nokia World with 3G Video Portal from NQUIR™

Amsterdam/Barcelona, December 1st, 2006 – NQUIR™, a leading video call entertainment company, announced today that Nokia Networks LTA welcomed its customers at the Nokia World event in Amsterdam with a streamed 3G video portal on Nokia phones. The circuit-switched mobile portal developed by NQUIR allowed quick and easy access to wide-ranging information at Nokia World such as a welcome message from Nokia Networks SVP Fernando Terni, key event messages, and helpful practical information.

With NQUIR's communications solution based on circuit-switched video calling as an underlying technology, Nokia Networks reached its customers more personally than ever: on their Nokia N73 mobile phone, which they received as a welcome gift at the event. Nokia customers at Nokia World simply dialed a number via video call to access the portal during the two-day event. NQUIR™ provided Nokia Networks with an end-to-end solution for developing, hosting and running circuit-switched video portals. NQUIR™ operates sites in the UK, Germany, Spain, Luxembourg and France under its own consumer-facing brands or on behalf of third-party partners and customers. "Nokia has been one of the first companies to explore the potential of video call marketing communications for its customers," said Enrique Jungbauer, Managing Director of NQUIR™. "By placing simplicity at the core of our products, we are well positioned to assist Nokia and other market leaders. We are excited about the opportunities ahead."

NQUIR's value proposition to global advertisers, brand owners, car manufacturers and the travel industry is to communicate with customers and prospects in an unprecedented way. Video portals allow consumers to participate and interact with the advertiser. As a professional services firm specializing in video call entertainment and marketing services, NQUIR™ provides international solutions to the world's top brands and their ad agencies.
